TRADING SCHOONER CRUSHED IN ARCTIC ICE FLOE; CREW SAFE

Mounted Police Boat Rescues Six Men From Battered Ship—Patrol Vessel Staggering Toward Coronation Gulf Lashed by Fierce Gale—Rescued and Rescuers Still in Peril

BERNARD HARBOR, N.W.T., Aug. 6 (By Wireless).—Locked in the straggling grasp of Arctic ice floes, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police schooner St. Roch staggered toward Coronation Gulf in a fierce northwest gale to-night after rescuing the crew of the foundered Hudson's Bay schooner Port James.

Crushed in the grinding masses of ice, the Port James sank yesterday three miles north of Chantry Island, off the corner of Canada's mainland halfway between Hudson Bay and Alaska.

SIX IN SHIP'S CREW

Fighting their way through a bitter wind in freezing temperatures, police officers aboard the St. Roch took the six men of the freighter's complement onto the St. Roch.

Last night they gave up their bunk to bring some comfort to the exhausted sailors who had lost their ship and their belongings.

Peril had not abated, however, either for the rescued or the rescuers. Ice conditions off this Arctic Harbor are worse than for many years. Piled by a pursuing gale out of the far Arctic, great masses of ice were wrenching at the stout steel of the Mounties' vessel.

Wireless operator of the St. Roch kept an all-night vigil, reporting conditions to wireless stations of

INITIATIVE IN OTHER HANDS

Spanish Government Claims Insurgents' Drive Stopped In Northeast Front

MADRID, Aug. 6 (AP).—The insurgents' Teruel drive in Northeastern Spain has been stopped, Government commanders declared to-night, and the initiative has passed to the Government in that battle area.

They said the insurgents' recent thrust into Cuenca Province, advancing the southern limits of the long, narrow salient pointed at Valencia, collapsed because poor roads prevented the insurgents from bringing up reinforcements, as rapidly as could the Government.

TO CUT OFF MADRID

The Teruel battlefield begins roughly 100 miles east of Madrid, and insurgent drives there have aimed at separating Madrid from Valencia, and both from Barcelona, capital of allied but autonomous Catalonia.

The forces of Catalonia, long inactive, have entered the campaign as effective allies of the Government. In the North, near the base of the Teruel salient, strong forces of Catalan militiamen, supported by shock troops from Valencia, closed a siege line around three sides of insurgent-held Huesca.

TWO OBJECTIVES

Terrific pressure has been exerted on the Teruel front with two objectives—to smash a wedge through insurgent General Franco's lines by capturing the capital of Huesca Province and to force the insurgents to shift their strength from Madrid to Northeast Spain.

Now, the high command here said, a new insurgent drive can be expected on another front. They said Franco faces imperative need of quick smashing action to restore in-

Clipper III Lands in Botwood Harbor After Crossing Atlantic Ocean

BOTWOOD, Nfld., Aug. 6 (AP).—Pan-American Airways Clipper III swooped down to the placid waters of Botwood Harbor at 6:50 A.D.T. (1:30 P.S.T.) tonight, after completing the first commercial daylight flight across the Atlantic.

Despite head winds averaging twenty-seven knots, the Clipper had four times conquered the tumultuous Atlantic, sped along over the 1,995-mile route in sixteen hours twenty-one minutes.

Non-Aid Committee Unable to Agree on British Compromise

Russian Refusal to Accord Belligerency Recognition to Spanish Combatants Makes End To Deadlock Impossible

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP).—Great Britain's compromise plan to put teeth in the "hands off Spain" agreement and accord belligerency recognition to the Spanish combatants after "substantial" withdrawal of foreigners, failed to achieve unanimous support today at a long meeting of the Non-Intervention Sub-Committee. The group adjourned for several weeks' vacation.

The Soviet ambassador, Ivan Maisky, crushed hopes for ending the current deadlock over belligerency recognition when he announced his Government refused to consider such recognition until all foreigners fighting in Spain were repatriated.

Spectacular Fire in Oil Field of California

Battling for three hours against blistering heat and choking smoke, firemen recently quelled a $30,000 fire which broke out in the rich Santa Fe Springs, Cal., oil field. Photo shows firemen combating the blaze with high pressure water streams, artificial fog and chemicals in their effort to smother the flames.

Social Credit Measure To License and Control Alberta Bankers Passed

Formal Assent Given to Drastic Legislation by Lieutenant-Governor—Other Radical Bills Put Through House in Four-Day Session—Courts Closed to Unlicensed Bankers

EDMONTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—The special session of the Alberta Legislature convened to vest control of banking in the Alberta Government was prorogued late this afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor John Brown.

Formal assent to the Social Credit legislation was given by the Lieutenant-Governor, removing all doubt of his reservation of signing the bills pending appeal to constitutional authorities at Ottawa.

There was not the slightest delay in assenting to the bill to license and control bankers in the province. Provincial Treasurer Solon Low told the Legislature yesterday, in moving second reading of the bill, that it was designed to place the people of Alberta in control of the financial policies of banks operating in the province.

The session lasted only four days, but more drastic legislation was passed in that time than possibly in any similar period in the history of any Canadian province.

HIGHLIGHTS OF BILLS
The following are tabloid descriptions of the major enactments:
An act empowering the Government to deposit Alberta funds in any provincial institution, not necessarily a chartered bank as formerly stipulated. The purpose was to deposit money in a state credit house.

An act giving wider powers to the Social Credit Board, a five-man board which has been operating since April with the assistance of two technical men nominated by Major C. H. Douglas, founder of Social Credit. As originally introduced, the board was given unlimited power to "do such acts and things as it may from time to time deem proper, for the purpose of promoting, conserving and enhancing the social credit of the province."

This was amended to make the board's activities subject to the approval of the Cabinet. Another clause of the original bill, empowering the board to "do such acts and things as it may from time to time deem proper, for the purpose of promoting, conserving and enhancing the social credit of the province," was deleted.

NO DISTURBANCES
The strike situation remained comparatively quiet through the six communities affected. In Montreal, four plants, there were no disturbances.

The situation at Sherbrooke was quiet, though pickets there refused to let office workers enter the mill to make up payrolls, which would include the strikers.

Meanwhile, a seventh city in the province, Sorel, was in the grip of another strike—a walkout of about 1,200 steel workers. From five plants flames at an altitude of 6,000 feet and crashed near this village.

Three Expelled By Home Office

German Newspaper Correspondents in London Given Two Weeks To Leave Country

LONDON, Aug. 7 (AP).—Three German newspaper correspondents in London are to be expelled from England after the British Home Office refused to renew their permits. They are Herr von Crome, chief London correspondent for The Berliner Lokal Anzeiger; Herr Wrede and Herr Langer of the newspaper service Graf Reichsbach.

Von Crome said they were given two weeks to leave the country. He added that he had no statement to make about the Home Office decision.

One vessel will be built in North Vancouver by Burrard Drydock Company, and the other in Victoria by Yarrows, Ltd. Two more minesweepers will be constructed in Eastern Canada, at Collingwood, Ont., and at Quebec City. Estimated cost of each vessel is $352,000.

Russo-U.S. Trade Pact Announced

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP).—A new trade agreement between the United States and Soviet Russia became effective today, pledging Russia to increase its yearly purchases of American goods.

The United States, in return, granted Russia unconditional most-favored-nation commercial treatment for the first time. Russia agreed to purchase at least $40,000,000 worth of American products in the next twelve months—$10,000,000 more than it was obligated to buy under an agreement which expired July 12.

WANT BENNETT AS PARTY HEAD

Victoria Conservatives Wire Dominion Chieftain Urging Him to Stay

Victoria Conservatives joined yesterday in a Dominion-wide appeal to Mr. H. B. Bennett, leader of the party, to retain command of the Conservative party in Canada. Following the Hope picnic, at which more than 1,500 British Columbia Conservatives of Vancouver and the Lower Fraser Valley rallied under the direction of Dr. Frank P. Patterson, provincial leader, President R. A. Wootton and Mayor R. D. Harvey returned to Victoria yesterday.

On behalf of city Conservatives, Mr. Harvey wired Mr. Bennett as follows:

"As president of the Victoria Conservative Association, and personally, sincerely hope you will find it possible to continue as leader of the Federal Conservative party, and urge that unless insuperable difficulties prevent that you continue to give us the wise and distinguished leadership you have bestowed on the party in the past. Your distinction is awaited with anxious interest, not by the party alone but by the Canadian people."

Similar messages were being sent by other Conservative associations throughout the province, supporting a unanimous resolution adopted at the Hope gathering urging Mr. Bennett to remain as leader of the party in Canada. R. A. Wootton attended the Hope gathering as provincial president.

Washington Bank Robbed Of Big Sum

STEVENSON, Wash., Aug. 6 (AP).—A shabbily dressed robber, who held up the Stevenson National Bank, fled through Southern Washington tonight with between $10,000 and $20,000, while Washington and Oregon officers hunted him.

The robber tied up two bank employees this morning and then forced M. W. Beck, vice-president, to surrender virtually all the bank's cash before locking him in a vault.

COPIES OF NEWSPAPER SEIZED IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Aug. 6 (CP-Havas).—The Gestapo (secret police) today confiscated all copies reaching Germany of Thursday's London Express, which carried on its front page a photograph of a German airplane and its crew brought down inside Spanish Government lines near Madrid.

Italian Ship Missing After Attacked by Unidentified Planes

British Tanker Also Target of Mysterious Aircraft At Almost Same Time and in Same Location in the Mediterranean

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Italian steamship Mongolia was missing tonight hours after she and the British tanker British Corporal were mysteriously attacked by unidentified bombing planes in the western Mediterranean.

The Mongolia flashed a brief SOS, saying she had been attacked. There were no further reports. The British Corporal, after sending an SOS and then retreating, reached the port of Algiers under her own power and apparently not seriously damaged. None of her crew of forty-three was injured.

Both ships were attacked almost at the same time and in the same spot off the coast of Algeria. Both Spanish Government and insurgent forces were apparently not

Japanese Tightening Grip With Heavy Reinforcement

NANKING, Aug. 6 (AP).—The fear and fever of war spread today to Central China. Over wide areas, hundreds of miles removed from the zone of actual hostilities in the North, Japanese, Chinese and foreign officials acted to move their nationals from regions which may be involved in the spreading conflict.

Hankow, the great trade and industrial centre of the middle Yangtze Valley, was the scene of feverish Japanese civilian evacuation and preparation for serious trouble.

MEETING TO HEAR LEADER

Bennett to Make Known Decision on Future Place in Party Tonight

OTTAWA, Aug. 6 (AP).—Parliamentary followers of the Conservative party who survived the Liberal deluge in the last election gathered in Ottawa tonight for a meeting which may mark a new milestone in the history of the party.

Tomorrow the members meet in their caucus room at the House of Commons to learn whether their leader, Mr. H. B. Bennett, has determined to resign or is willing to remain at the post he accepted ten years ago.

Whatever Mr. Bennett's decision, party organizations and policy will also be discussed. With two years of the term of the present Liberal Government elapsed, Conservatives feel it is time to bestir themselves about the next election.

THREE POSSIBILITIES

Observers saw three possible results from tomorrow's meeting:

Mr. Bennett might remain leader and prepare the party for another election.

He might remain leader on a temporary basis pending the summation of a national convention to endorse his leadership or select another man, draft a policy and revamp the party organization.

He might resign forthwith, causing election of a temporary parliamentary leader and calling of a national convention.

Teachers Pack Books And Prepare to Enjoy Rest of Holiday Time

Provincial Department of Education's Summer School Came to an End Yesterday—Seven Hundred Teachers Begin Month's Vacation

MORE than 700 instructors and teachers, who have been here attending the Provincial Department of Education's Summer school for the past six weeks, yesterday afternoon said their adieus, packed up their books, and either settled down to the enjoyment of the remaining holiday weeks in Victoria or started for vacation elsewhere.

About sixty of the teachers came to an end yesterday at 4 o'clock. Simultaneously in Vancouver the courses conducted there in biology and technical education came to a close, and the 100 teachers who have been taking those classes also dispersed for holiday.

SUCCESSFUL CLASSES

"A most successful and satisfactory Summer school, with a very fine feeling on the part of the teachers, who really seemed to enjoy their studies to fit them for the new curriculum," said Director Harold L. Campbell, in summarizing his impressions of what has proved to be the largest of the Summer Schools for many years. While the heavy registration was undoubtedly due to the fact that the courses were primarily designed with a view to giving teachers further insight into and understanding of the practical application of the fundamental philosophy underlying the new programme of studies, the students are reported as having apparently greatly enjoyed the classes.

There were no final formalities at the breaking-up yesterday. Classes carried on just as usual both morning and afternoon. As specific credit units were given students taking each of the courses, many of the teachers will this year have completed the requirements for first-class teachers' certificates. Departmental examinations for commercial specialists will begin today and run through the ensuing week. About sixty students seeking provincial certification as specialists have been attending these commercial classes.

SPORTS END

Sports events, which have run concurrently with the more serious studies at the Summer School, were also brought to a conclusion yesterday with the close of the tennis tournament, the finalists in which were Nordan and Walneley. James Macdonald, of Woodfibre Superior School, Howe Sound, won the golf tournament, which started about three weeks ago with twenty-four entries. Play was over the George Vale course.

The tussle for the softball championship ended when Vancouver district team, captained by J. Mor-

Forced to Land on Cowichan Lake

When it ran out of gas while en route to its headquarters at Sprout Lake, the above Royal Canadian Air Force seaplane was compelled to make a landing on the smooth surface of Cowichan Lake last week. The plane contained three occupants, and had been engaged in aerial photography in the lake district. Several young campers, with the aid of rowboats, towed the huge ship to Colonel Boyd's landing place, where it was refueled. After refueling, the ship, originally from Ottawa, continued to its base at Sprout Lake. Standing on the wing of the plane are Rita Nevard, Netta Hunter and Dave Boyd, who helped in towing the ship.

Strike-Bound Gold Mine to Reopen Soon

VANCOUVER, Aug. 6 (P.—P. W. Guernsey, president of Island Mountain Gold Mining Company, said today the company's mine at Wells, B.C., closed since May 25 by a strike, would be reopened by August 16 "on a normal 120-ton per day basis, and will employ something over 100 men."

Carlboe, Gold Quartz, adjacent property, whose crew struck with the Island Mountain men for higher wages and union recognition, resumed work two weeks ago.

PORT TOWNSEND VISITORS HERE

Peace Pilgrimage Arranged By Junior Chamber Includes 200 Visitors

Something unique in the history of Victoria is the "peace pilgrimage" of 200 persons from Port Townsend to the city today, which has been arranged by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in connection with the anniversary celebrations. The visitors are expected to arrive on the Black Ball ferry this morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Designed to foster international good will between Canada and the United States, it is hoped that the visit will become an annual event. Capt. Norman Foster, secretary of the Junior Chamber, who is in large part responsible for the scheme, has been invited to return the visit personally in the near future, and an invitation has also been extended to the chamber to send a similar good-will delegation to the American city in coming years.

DR. GEORGE BANGERTER Included among the Washington visitors is Dr. George Bangarter, former mayor of Port Townsend, and once a resident of Victoria. An enthusiastic promoter of his former city's interests, Dr. Bangarter has done much to make the present visit possible.

The party will also include a Scouts' drum and bugle corps and a glee club from the American port. Immediately on arrival, the visitors will be welcomed by Mayor Andrew McGavin and Alderman T. W. Hawkins. A ceremony will be held at the Cenotaph, when wreaths from the United States, the American Legion, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion and the Port Townsend Chamber of Commerce will be laid on the war memorial.

MARCH TO CITY HALL Led by the band, the delegation will march to the City Hall, where the band and the glee club will give a fifteen-minute concert. The visitors will then march to the Chamber of Commerce, where a similar concert will be given. Then they will parade to the Strathcona Hotel, to pay tribute to the Port Townsend rhododendron queen, Maria McIlroy, who is the guest of the Junior Chamber for the jubilee week.

The whole delegation will take part in the torchlight parade, to be held this evening. Led by the Queen in her decorated car, Entertainment will be provided for the visitors during the afternoon.

PRESENTATION OF RING A novel feature of the visit will be a presentation to the Junior Chamber by the visitors of an engraved silver ring, the first of a series of such rings that will be placed around the staff of a silk Union Jack that the chamber has recently acquired. The flag is a good will emblem, and will be carried in the parade tonight by the Port Townsend delegation.

J. A. BLAND IS MEDAL WINNER

Highest Award of Old Land Sweet Pea Society Goes To Local Producer

James A. Bland, 1049 Richmond Road, who has won fame for himself and for Victoria, the city of his birth, in the production of high-grade sweet peas, has just been informed that the world-famous Scottish National Sweet Pea Society has awarded him the gold medal of that society for the new sweet pea, "Mrs. R. P. Bland," which was produced by Mr. Bland, and at the same time the silver medal of the organization for another of his new peas, "The Eclipse."

A cable received yesterday by Mr. Bland from Glasgow conveyed this information to him. It was with special satisfaction that he learned that the variety named after Mrs. R. P. Bland, who has done so much for floriculture here, should have been the one to win the signal honor awarded it. This pea is a large deep lavender, one which Mr. Bland regards as perhaps the most striking he has been able to perfect. Last year the Scottish National Sweet Pea Society awarded this flower its certificate of merit. Now it has been given the gold medal of the society.

HAS GOOD RECORD This sweet pea, which the producer has been perfecting for some seasons, was named after Mrs. Bland with her special consent. It is being put on the market this fall for seedling.

The cable from Glasgow also told of the silver medal award for Mr. Bland's "Eclipse," which is a picture variety with a white ground and a pink edge. This pea will not be ready for the market until next fall, Mr. Bland says.

Mr. Bland has the unique distinction of having produced a long line of winners of honors from the old-established Scottish Society. In addition to the honors mentioned, which come to him in the Jubilee

Expert Explains Implications of New Curriculum

Dr. H. B. King, Addressing Final Assembly of Teachers at Summer School, Rehearses Objectives as Laid Down by Department of Education—Ethical Standards Important

"A PERSON who cannot adjust himself to life as conditions change is a maladjusted personality. The aim of the school should be to produce people capable of new adjustments in an evolving and progressive social order. This is the way a democratic civilization lives and grows."
"This is the evolutionary period, the opposite of a revolutionary social order," said Dr. H. B. King, principal of Kitikano High School, addressing a large group of Summer School teachers at their final general assembly at the Victoria High School.

Dr. King, who was loaned by the Vancouver School Board to the Department of Education as curriculum and technical adviser, was speaking about "Educational and Social Implications of the New Curriculum." He expressed appreciation of the way in which teachers of British Columbia had responded to the so-called "new" curriculum, although in reality its fundamental principles were as old as Plato, and there was little in it that had not been advocated for years by higher educationists.

STRESSES INTEGRATION
With the addition of the fourth function of "doing," Dr. King agreed with Dr. Hall Quest, the eminent American educationist who addressed the students just a week ago, that the main functions of education were to develop understanding, thinking and appreciation. "Learning dissociated from meaningful experience is useless," Dr. King added.

Answering certain critics who had suggested that there was something sinister, anti-democratic and socialistic about the new programme of studies, Dr. King read from the department's Bulletin the eleven objectives sought:

"Love for the other nations of the British Commonwealth and for our constitutional monarchy; appreciation of the necessity for government, and the meaning of liberty, citizenship and co-operation; appreciation of our great pioneers of empire, government and reform; science and invention; tolerance and respect for other nations and races; willingness to submit to the rule of the majority and a respect for the rights of the minority; recognition of civic responsibilities and willingness to respond to them with appropriate action; respect for the rights and property of others; an attitude of open-mindedness and an appreciation for truth; appreciation of the dignity of labor and its part in the development of character; recognition of the fact that the British and Canadian tradition is to abide by the law, and that when one desires changes to be made in the law he should employ only lawful and constitutional methods of effecting such changes; recognition that every Canadian, whether by birth or adoption, should have a whole-hearted love for Canada, a reasoned and deep-seated patriotism, and that a Canadian can best serve the other nations of the British Empire and the rest of the world by doing what it is in his power to do towards making Canada greater and nobler."

HIGHER STATE
In other words, summing up, the aim of social studies, as a distinguished British educationist had said, should be to produce "a more sane, more humane and more ethical state of civilization."
"In this programme of social studies we do not suggest that we know what society is going to be like in the future. There are people who say that the school should bring about a new social order. Personally I do not support this idea," said Dr. King. "What society will be like in the future will only be discovered in time."

ATLAS Charles Winninger could write an excellent testimonial for one automobile manufacturer. The actor, who plays Cappy Ricks in the Cosmopolitan adventure drama, "The Go-Getter," now to be seen at the Atlas Theatre, has driven one make of motor car for nearly fifteen years.
CAPITOL Markham at its gayest. Theatre is seen in "A Day at the Races," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre is the newest laugh hit of that trio of unimpaired and inimitable laugh-makers, the Marx Brothers. Maureen O'Sullivan and Allan Jones provide the romantic leads.
DOMINION "Woman Chases Man." Samuel Goldwyn's four-act comedy starring Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea is now featured at the Dominion Theatre. This refreshing story casts Miriam as a starting job architect in search of a job, who contacts Winninger, a lovable, but somewhat nutty, inventor, who needs $100,000 to finance a model village.

PLAZA Drama under the "Big Theatre Top" is portrayed in the Republic Picture "Circus Girl," which shows for the last times today at the Plaza Theatre. June Travis and Bob Livingston are starred with a strong supporting cast headed by Donald Cook.

OAK BAY "We Are From Kronstadt," the Russian film showing for the last times today at the Oak Bay Theatre, is a notable addition to the magnificent series of Soviet revolutionary pictures. Dealing with the heroic defence of Petrograd by the Red marines in 1919, the production is superbly staged and photographed and brilliantly acted.

Victorian to Broadcast From Toronto

ERIC TREDWELL

SON of Mr. and Mrs. Tredwell, of 1818 Belmont Avenue, who will be heard over CBCV, Vancouver, at 8 o'clock tonight in a broadcast from Toronto conducted by Samuel Helsenoren. Mr. Tredwell, who has a fine baritone voice, is a Victoria boy, educated at the Boys' Central, Victoria High and Normal Schools, and later attending Victoria College. He studied singing here with Gideon Hicks and G. A. Downard before going to Germany to continue his studies with Dr. Switzer.

appointees of the Social Credit Board.

BANK LICENCES

Bank licences, which might cost as high as $100 for every branch and $5 for every employee, must be taken out within twenty-one days of today (August 7). Bankers would undertake "to refrain from acting or assisting or encouraging any person or persons to act in a manner which restricts or interferes with the private and civil rights of any person or persons within the province."

Licences could be revoked or canceled by the credit commission. Local directorates, five-man boards with three appointees of the Social Credit Board and two representatives of the banker would "supervise" and control the policy of the banker. . . . for the purpose of preventing any act by such bankers or any employee or employees thereof constituting a restriction or interference, either direct or indirect, with the full enjoyment of property and civil rights by any person within the province."

HEAVY PENALTIES

Unlicensed bankers could be fined from $5,000 to $10,000 and could be closed to them. The credit commission would have power to pass regulations which must be observed by bankers.
Only six minutes was necessary today for formal third reading of the bill, but nearly three hours was consumed in discussing a report of a non-political committee of the Legislature which has been studying relief problems since April.
The report recommended centralization of relief administration, imposition of a special relief tax and provincial financing of grants and municipal contributions based on their ability to pay.
The report finally was shelved until the next session after Health Minister W. W. Cross said it was futile to attempt to remedy relief problems until changes were made in the economic system.

INITIATIVE IN OTHER HANDS

surgent morale and prestige. Official quarters here said mutiny in insurgent ranks, particularly in Malaga and Granada, was a critical problem.

MYSTERIOUS ITALIANS

One of the mysteries of the situation was the whereabouts of Italian troops known to be with the insurgents. Government commanders suspected they were being groomed for a new effort.

For the first time since the beginning of the war, the city of Cuenca suffered an insurgent attack. Five modern bombers bombed the city in the early morning, killing twelve persons, including women and children, and wounding scores of others.
A sudden renewal of insurgent artillery bombardments here killed six persons and wounded twenty-eight.

BOMBING SANTANDER

SALAMANCA, Spain, Aug. 6 (CP-Havas).—Insurgent airplanes today bombed the coast near Santander and the fortifications of the Basque City. Insurgents announced tonight Leaflets urging the Basques to surrender were dropped.
Insurgent headquarters announced that twelve Spanish Government airplanes were shot down by insurgents today in battle over Torre de la Vega on the Aragon front. Land troops occupied the Sierra de la Cruz in the Albarracin sector.

KILLED WHEN ENGINE GOES THROUGH BRIDGE

EUREKA, Cal., Aug. 6 (AP).—Three men, crew of a lumber train, were killed today when the locomotive and several cars plunged through a burning trestle at Shively, thirty-six miles south of here.
The victims were Engineer Ed. H. Weathersby, fifty-five, Fireman Carlton G. Bartlett, fifty, and Head Brakeman G. C. Sullivan, all of Eureka.

MANY ASKING ABOUT CITY

Publicity Bureau Receiving Enquiries About Residential Possibilities

Frank Grolma, of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, yesterday announced that during the month of July the Bureau had received inquiries concerning residential possibilities in Victoria and other points on the Island from people in California, Alberta, Greenland, Manitoba, Ontario, Michigan and Hongkong.

Besides correspondence from these districts, the Bureau is daily receiving calls from visitors here from all parts of North America seeking similar information, and stating that they have come to Victoria with the purpose of personally finding out the nature of Victoria's residential possibilities. Some of these, especially those from the Canadian provinces and California, state that numbers of people in their towns are considering, and in some cases actually arranging to move to Vancouver Island.

In keeping with the general trend, Victoria real estate agents announce that rents are going up, and expect a considerably increased demand for residential and small business properties this fall.

FUTURE PLANS ARE OUTLINED

Dr. Clem Davies to Leave Victoria Except for Friday Night Meetings

Dr. Clem Davies announced to a large audience in the Chamber of Commerce, auditorium last night that the Sunday services he has held in the city for most of the last fifteen years are to be discontinued, at least for the time being.
In the immediate future he will continue the Sunday and weekday night meetings that have been greeted with such large attendances in Vancouver. At the meeting last night it was decided that Dr. Davies would continue his ministry here in the form of weekly meetings on Friday evenings. These are to be held in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium until further announcement is made.

AT OAK BAY THEATRE

The Sunday services here will in future be in charge of Rev. E. Robertson Orr, who has ministered to a Vancouver congregation for the last eight years. The services will be held at Oak Bay Theatre, the first being on Sunday, August 22.
Explaining how continued calls for his services in larger fields had forced him to widen his work, Dr. Davies said that he had been reaching between fifteen and twenty thousand persons each week during the month he has been away from Victoria. As well, his radio contacts are being increased by new speaking schedules over station KJVR and the Canadian Broadcasting Commission national network.

CALL TO WIDER SERVICE

"Monetary returns in no way enter the picture," he stated, "but the call to wider service leaves me with no alternative but to accept I believe that Vancouver is going to be one of the greatest growing cities in the British Empire and in view of its needs I believe that my work is there."
After the meeting, Dr. Davies announced that Howard B. Rand, national commissioner of the Anglo-Saxon Federation of America which is a sister organization of the British-Israel Federation, had asked him to be the chief speaker at the national convention of that body to be held in Detroit in September. If he is able to accept, he will go to Detroit by plane.

COLLECTION TO BE MADE FOR CHILDREN

In aid of the Kiddies' Christmas Tree, Joe North will again make a street collection this evening along the route of the illuminated parade. The amount so generously donated on Wednesday afternoon to the Bank of Montreal under the names of W. H. Davies and Joe N. H.

IN CONSTANT TOUCH

The station at Coppermine in Coronation Gulf was instructed by departmental headquarters at Ottawa to keep in constant communication with the St. Roch in case the situation becomes desperate.
Bert H. A. Larsen, speaking Mountie who is in charge of navigation, declared he was confident his sturdy ninety-ton vessel would survive. Specially built to withstand the vicious ice, the St. Roch has heavy steel plates and a round bottom like an ice-breaker.

GRIEVERS OVER LOSS

First Mate W. Starker, Engineer G. O. White and three Eskimo deckhands were the others saved. Captain Summers grieved over the loss of his 117-ton trading schooner which had successfully battled her way through eight years of Arctic sea.

Both vessels returned when they were caught in the ice-jam. The Mounties ship was on her way to pick up supplies at the Mounted Police supply depot on Herschel Island, near the Alaskan border. These were to be distributed to lonely police posts here, at Cambridge Bay, 200 miles east of here, and at other points in the northern north.

The Fort James makes two trips every year to Hudson's Bay post, taking in supplies from the company depot at the mouth of the Mackenzie River and collecting furs. She was on her way to the Mackenzie delta when she was cut open by the ice.

Victoria Man to Tour in Italy

Photograph by Rex Weller.

LATE of the "Bon Ton" Fort Street, who recently left Victoria for three months' visit to Italy. Mr. Notte expects to return to the city about the end of October.

their only direct contact with these white church members will be through the quadrennial general conference. There has been considerable criticism of this separation, but it is argued that complete unification would have caused the Methodist Episcopal Church South to reject the plan. The point is made that the Southern Negro Methodists are better off with their own church, which is on terms of equality with every other church, than they would be as a minority in a church, a majority of whom were white.

REV. GEORGE MARVIN PASSES IN HOSPITAL

Rev. George Marvin passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday morning in his eightieth year. He was born at Walkerton, near Belleville, Ontario, and entered the ministry of the Methodist Church in Quebec in 1877.

For a number of years he was minister at Cobourg Presbyterian Church in Ontario, and retired from active work when the union of churches was effected in Canada. He is survived by his widow, who is residing at 146 Clarence Street, and one daughter, Mrs. Dr. Vivian Loughlin, pathologist in the Women's College Hospital, Toronto. The remains are resting at McCall Bros' Funeral Home and will be forwarded on this afternoon's boat to Vancouver en route to Toronto, where services will be held and interment made.

State Comments on Business in East

"We were badly troubled with labor disputes until a recent decision handed down by the High Court of the State did much to curtail the powers of the unions," declared Hon. Thomas A. Mathis, Secretary of State for New Jersey, at the Empress Hotel yesterday.

Mr. Mathis, who is accompanied by his wife, Judge Leon Berry, vice-chancellor of the court, Mrs. Berry and Mrs. R. C. Spackman, arrived at the Coast after a leisurely trip across the continent. They stayed for a short time at Banff and Lake Louise, and are leaving today on the R.M.S. Empress of Canada for Honolulu, where they will remain until September 1. They will return home via San Francisco.

This is Mr. Mathis' first trip to the West, and he is greatly impressed with the Dominion. "You have a wonderfully fine country," he commented.

He declared business conditions were increasingly better through the Eastern United States, was thankful that labor troubles were for the most part over, and gave the credit for their cessation to the decision rendered by his friend, Judge Berry.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathis and Mrs. Spackman reside at Toms River, not far from Lakehurst, N.J.

MARK DECREASE IN CITY RELIEF

Number of Cases Here Less
Than for Same Period
Last Year

A decided decrease in the number of cases on relief in Victoria during the month of July was indicated by the monthly report made public by the relief office yesterday.

The month of June already set a new low record for the five years the office has been in operation. The number of cases last month was even lower, while in August they are expected to drop below the 600 mark.

There were 604 heads of families on relief in July, compared with 671 in June. In July, 1936, the figure was 805. Thus, in twelve months there has been a decrease of 201 cases.

There were 407 single men and women on relief last month, compared with 433 in June. Last year in July, the number in this section totaled 397.

Invitation Musical Enjoyable

In compliment to Hon. G. A. Bucklin and Mrs. Bucklin, late of Wellington, New Zealand, who are enjoying a brief visit in the city before taking up permanent residence in California, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Cameron and Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Cameron entertained with a charmingly arranged musical reception and musicale last evening at the home of the former, "Roseboro," Moss Street.

The guests were welcomed in the reception hall, which, like the drawing-room and music-room, was decked with masses of midsummer bloom of the most exquisite coloring. The exquisitely appointed table in the upstairs supper-room, where refreshments were served at 11 o'clock, held at its centre an enormous bowl of pink and white carnations and pink snapdragons.

THE PROGRAMME

The musical programme, arranged with admirable discretion for chamber-musical purposes, was enthusiastically enjoyed by the guests, the interpretations in each instance being stamped by a sensitive and refined quality that perfectly suited the occasion. The numbers included Beethoven's D Major Sonata, played by Selma Reyes, violinist, and Maquinn Daniels, pianist; the last two movements of Brahms' G Major ("Rain") Sonata, played by Selma Reyes and Mrs. Hebdon Gillespie, pianist; "Elegie" (Faure), and one movement of Samartini's "Sonata in G Major," played by Mary Bucklin Hammond, cellist, and Una Calvert, pianist; and "Thought Like Music" (Brahms) and "Dedication" (Franz), sung by Mrs. T. H. Johns.

Mr. and Mrs. Bucklin, during their many years' residence in Victoria, while Mr. Bucklin was United States Consul here, did a great deal to stimulate and promote the musical life of the community, and their many musical as well as other friends have rallied to give them a cordial welcome during their brief stay as the guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Hammond, Victoria Avenue.

Couple Will Make Home In Calgary

Rev. Norman J. Cress, formerly of Prince George, officiated at the marriage of Marion Elsie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Greenidge, 1158 Empress Avenue, and Mr. Edward Howard Tattersall, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tattersall, Slocan City, B.C., which took place at Victoria Truth Centre last evening, at 8:30 o'clock. In a lovely floral setting of late summer blooms and greenery.

Miss Yvonne Arthur played the wedding marches and accompanied Mr. George Petch, who sang "All Joy Be Thine" during the signing of the register.

Mr. Greenidge gave his daughter away, and she was a radiant figure in bridal gown of white chiffon with a slight train. The frock was buttoned down the front from throat to hemline with self-covered buttons, with a cluster of orange blossoms at the neck, and had long pointed sleeves. Her veil of embroidered net was worn beneath a coronet of orange blossoms across the top of her head, and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, white sweet peas and carnations. Mrs. S. T. Parker was matron of honor in an attractive frock of pastel blue net with a long full skirt, a matching hat with a wide brim and blue mittens and carried a bouquet of Enchantress carnations and blue centaurs. Mr. Monty Morley was best man and the usher was Mr. S. T. Parker.

FORMAL RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Greenidge welcomed their friends at an informal reception after the ceremony in the smaller hall, during which the bride and groom stood beneath a floral arch between tall baskets of mixed flowers, and late supper was served at a table arranged with bowls of sweet peas. The three-tiered cake was cut by the bride, and stood on a small table between tiny vases of sweet peas.

Mrs. Greenidge was dressed in a floral sheer gown on a navy blue background, with black accessories, and a corsage bouquet of roses, and Mrs. Marion Barker, Calgary, sister of the groom, who received with her, wore a red and blue-flowered chiffon frock with white accessories and a corsage bouquet in the two colors.

Before taking up their residence in Calgary, Mr. and Mrs. Tattersall will visit at Lake Louise. The bride went away in a tawn crepe frock with a matching wool overcoat and brown accessories.

Poetess Gave 115 Addresses During Year

After a comprehensive lecture-tour that covered 115 addresses to audiences totaling more than 15,000, Edna Jacques Jameson, the well-known Canadian verse writer who lived here for several years, has just returned to her home at Briarcrest, Sask.

After a few weeks' holiday, she will set out again, early in September, for another lecture-tour, opening the Moose Jaw Canadian Club year, then on to Battleford to open the Canadian Club year there. Among other bookings already made is one at Lloydminster, where she will begin another speaking tour for the Homemakers Club.

In writing to Victoria friends, Mrs. Jameson gives a distressing picture of the drought conditions in the Briarcrest district of Saskatchewan, where, she says, the crops are an absolute loss, not having produced even enough to feed the stock. The young men and many of the girls have already left for Manitoba and Ontario to look for work, and most of the cattle have been shipped away or killed. Water is so scarce that it is impossible to keep up the gardens, and "even the thistles are dying."

planes are based within striking distance.

Neither ship was engaged in Spanish trade. The Mongolia was en route from Genoa to New Orleans, the British Corporal from the Persian gulf port of Abadan to England with a cargo of gasoline. Both were miles off the coast.

While many merchant ships have been under fire from war vessels in Spanish waters and others, supposedly carrying contraband, have been "sunk" at sea, instances of aerial attack in the Spanish war have been few.

Wedding at Knox Church Is Attractive

Knox Presbyterian Church was beautifully decorated for the wedding of Beatrice Emma Violet, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hawkins, 217 Linden Avenue, and Mr. Richard Grech, 1956 Ash Street, and the late Mrs. Grech, which took place last evening at 8 o'clock.

Rev. J. Mackie Niven conducted the ceremony, and Mr. Lawson Partridge presided at the organ, and as the register was being signed, accompanied Mr. Sidney McAllister, who sang "All Joy Be Thine."

CHARMING BRIDE
During the service the bride and groom stood beneath an arch of Shasta daisies, gladioli and sweet peas. Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in her slim fitting gown of ivory satin with a short train, the bodice being fashioned with a yoke and Elizabethan collar of lace, and long satin sleeves tapering to a point over the hands, and she also wore hand-crocheted gloves and a necklace of pearls.

Her veil of embroidered bridal net was caught to the nape of her neck with a strand of orange blossoms, and across her brow she wore a half circle of pearls, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and white carnations showered with sweet peas.

Shrine Council President Sends Thanks to Mayor
The thanks and appreciation of the Northwest Shrine Council for the extremely hospitable manner in which their members had been treated during their stay in Victoria were received by Mayor Andrew McLean, newly-elected president of the council, in a letter yesterday.

"The entire programme seemed to be unfolded without any hitch, and every plan showed conclusively that you group had given a great deal of thought to their time and development," wrote Mr. Eastman.

"I would like to have you personally express to Mr. T. W. Hawkins, of your board of aldermen, our sincere thanks and appreciation for the wonderful amount of work and effort put into this affair."

"The city of Victoria, by its method of entertaining, has spread its reputation for hospitality, so the city will receive dividends in the form of new residents and increase in tourist visitors."

"Mel Dyson, the blind man," Angus said, "occupies half the servants' quarters. He was living there when Fordell bought the place and he hadn't the heart to put him out. Tony Marco occupies the other half of the servants' quarters. Tony claims to be an ex-New York gangster. He looks the part all right, but I doubt he was ever mixed up in anything very serious."

"He drove down to meet the ferry," Sheila replied. "But go in, Julian's there at the gate. He'll show you the study."

Julian was so thin he looked anemic. He pulled himself up as Polly approached and bowed. He did not open the gate and when she opened it, he blocked her way.

"Are you," he demanded, "the girl the old man talked to on the phone this afternoon?"

Dolly looked his straight in the eyes. She thought, "He's sick, this

CHAPTER II
A little cry escaped Polly's lips as a salty spray cut across her eyes. Quickly, Angus Garbrook put a hand under her chin and mopped her face with a large handkerchief.

Polly opened her eyes. "Thanks," she said. "I am blinded." "But though the hand holding the handkerchief had returned to the tiller, the fingers of his other hand still pressed against her chin. He said, his gaze locked with hers. "My next heroine will have copper-colored hair and gorgeous grey-green eyes, and a smashing red lip. All I need now is a story for her to move through."

Gentle laughter was in Polly's eyes as she said, "I'd make a very poor fiction heroine, I'm afraid. Angus, I'm not a girl, I'm a woman. I've been married for three years. I've got a child. I've got a job. I've got a life. I've got a story for her to move through."

But though she screened her feelings with words, the touch of his fingers had made her suddenly self-conscious. She had known this man only a few minutes, and yet she knew—and was ashamed by the knowledge—that if he had kissed her instead of barely touching her with his fingers, she would have been no more moved than she was now.

She thought of what a kindly physician had said to her at the end of her three years in Washington. Perhaps she would one day know him well enough to tell him.

He was tinkering with the engine again and Polly's gaze moved ahead to the rapidly changing shoreline of the island with its broken line of big rambling frame houses, old for the most part, set well back from the beach.

The three islands spread out before them, Mr. Pleasant, Sullivan's Island and the Isle of Palms. On their right was Port Sumner, a tiny island itself, target of the first shot fired in the Civil War.

Eyes half shut against the glare of a reflecting sun, Polly faced completely around and studied the familiar skyline of the city. Picturesque, historic Charleston that had changed so little since the days of its greater glory when it was the fourth largest city in the country.

The engine was functioning properly now and Garbrook eased back to the seat beside her.

"The big green house directly ahead," he said presently, "is Fordell's. Mine is on the left, the faded blue one. They both look better inside than out."

"They look swell to me," Polly said. "We used to spend our summers on the island, years ago when I was very small, and I'd like to again. If I had this job."

"You'll stay at Fordell's?" She nodded. "Mr. Fordell said that was the one catch. I don't know why, but it's my idea of the right sort of catch."

A man and a girl came out of the green house and walked toward the beach.

Angus Garbrook looked at her, smiling. "Family all straight in your mind now?"

"I think so." She named them off on her fingers.

"Good!" he applauded. "You learn fast. Incidentally, there are six other members of the menage, but they won't confuse you. Three colored servants who live somewhere on the island. Mel Dyson, who is both blind and a deaf mute. Tony Marco, ostensibly the family chauffeur but actually Fordell's bodyguard. And a wealth known as Nip Williams. You want to look out for Nip."

"You want to look out for Nip?" Polly asked. "He comes and goes like a shadow and while she's probably harmless, just watching her gives you an eerie feeling."

Polly remembered what Jerry Brell had said to her. "Better talk with Nip Williams before you take a job at Fordell's. You may think she's slightly screwy, but she's not."

"Mel Dyson, the blind man," Angus said, "occupies half the servants' quarters. He was living there when Fordell bought the place and he hadn't the heart to put him out. Tony Marco occupies the other half of the servants' quarters. Tony claims to be an ex-New York gangster. He looks the part all right, but I doubt he was ever mixed up in anything very serious."

boy. Physically and perhaps mentally. She said, quietly, "Yes, I talked with Mr. Fordell this afternoon."

His shifty eyes moved through a furtive arc. "Don't be a fool," he said, harshly. "Stay away from this place. There's going to be murder here soon. Wholesale murder."

She was edging around him. "I love murder, Julian," she told him, smiling. "I eat it up, really. And the more murder, the better I like it."

He glared at her, reproachfully. "You think I'm joking?" He reached out, quickly, and gripped her arm. "Listen. I'm not kidding. Fordell brought all his formulae from Washington. They're worth billions. Think what Italy or Germany or Japan would give for the death-ray. Think!"

A voice masculine in quality but unmistakably feminine came across the yard.

"Who is it, Julian? Is that someone to see me?" Evelyn Fordell had left her chair under a beach umbrella and was coming leisurely toward them. A vivid, artificial blonde, she was wearing full beach pajamas of almost the exact shade of her violet eyes. She was rather large but well proportioned. There was a distinct trace of beauty in her round face, but there was a trace of hardness, too.

"What do you want?" Mrs. Fordell asked. "Why do you want to see my husband?"

Polly said, evenly, "I have an appointment with Mr. Fordell. I told him I would come on the three o'clock ferry, but I missed it."

"Their eyes clashed and seeing the blood-red lips open, Polly knew she was about to hear the whip cracked over her head. But the arrival of Angus and Sheila Cleaves saved her from that."

Angus said, pleasantly, "Evelyn, this is Miss Markey. Norris asked her to come over on business, I believe. Mrs. Fordell, Polly."

Polly said, gravely, "How do you do, Mrs. Fordell?" And, quickly, "Will it be all right if I wait in the study?"

"First door on your left," Sheila volunteered, "as you enter the living-room."

"If you will excuse me," Polly said, a little stiffly, and was moving rapidly along the walk when an interesting trio came around the house. A dog came first, a big intelligent looking animal with a high fine head. Then, holding the dog's taut leash, appeared a large coupled man with a battered grey cap pulled down until its long visor almost hid the dark glasses fitted around the unseen eyes. Last, trailing the blind man, came a small boy in khaki shorts and white tropical hat.

Polly said to the youngster, "You're Tod, aren't you?"

The hat came off, exposing the shiny, freckled little face to the sunlight. Frankly curious eyes studied Polly's face. He said at last, "Yes—mum," and the "mum" seemed to come as an afterthought. "And that," the boy added, "is Mel Dyson. He's blind and he can't talk or hear."

"Oh, I'm sorry," Polly said. Her eyes followed Dyson and the dog as they neared the servants' cottage. Then she faced the boy once more. "I'm Polly Markey. Tod, how do you and me being friends?"

Tod pondered over this—asked abruptly, "Can you play baseball?"

"You bet I can. Or any other boys' game you want to name. But I must go in and see your father now." She ruffled his hair and went on to the house.

Sheila had said, "First door on your left as you enter the living-room." Polly expected an entry hall, but having opened the screen door she stepped directly from the porch into the living-room. It was a large comfortably furnished room but not until later did Polly note its details.

Interrupted Romance by Julie Anne Moore

Now she just saw the radio against the wall on her left, and just beyond it, the half open door. She knocked and receiving no answer pushed the door open and stepped into Norris Fordell's study.

A dark green flat-top steel desk was on the far side of the room. Behind the desk, the back to a wide window, was a green armchair. There were two other chairs. High shelves of books lined three walls and directly to the left of the doorway were three metal filing cabinets.

Then Polly saw the bronze figure. It was on the centre filing cabinet, the figure of a very small girl with plaited hair, smiling down at a huge frog held in her fat little hands. Polly remembered seeing a similar figure at the Brookgreen Gardens, in the open museum there. "Frog Baby," the placard under the museum piece had read. This one in Norris Fordell's study was not, she knew, a copy, but it was very like the other.

Polly would not soon forget this particular "Frog Baby." For her the little bronze figure would mark the beginning and, curiously enough, the end of an incredible adventure. But now she moved about the study, idly, and was standing in the centre of the room looking down at the altered desk when she became aware of the closed door to the right of the desk.

Closed the door was, and yet Polly knew the knob had turned. Then so slowly that she could not be sure it was moving at all, it began to swing out on its hinges. The next moment, it was flung wide open and a tall, pale girl glided into the room. Seeing Polly, she grew suddenly rigid and her small dark eyes set in a terrified stare.

Polly's uneasiness vanished. She took a step forward. "I'm sorry I frightened you," she said, quietly. "Are you—Nip Williams?"

"The girl's thin hands clutched at her throat and her lips moved soundlessly. She spoke at last, in an awed whisper. A shrieking wall in that quiet room would have been less startling."

"I know who you are. You've come to see about a job. But you must go away, at once. He may be back any minute. Don't let him find you here. They'll break your spirit—the way they've broken mine. They're all plotting something terrible. I don't know what it is, but—"

The marble-like eyes fluttered wildly in their sockets as somewhere in the house a door slammed.

Nip Williams was gliding through the same doorway by which she had entered when she turned and flung back in that strained whisper: "It's too late. He's coming. You're trapped!" and vanished behind the silently closing door.

Hints on Colors Made by Visiting Eastern Stylist

Miss Sylvia Cluxton, proprietor of an exclusive gown shop in Richmond, weathery residential suburb near New York City, declares that styles in the West are dissimilar to those in New York. "But," she admits, "that is as it should be. Eastern styles would not be fitting here."

With Miss Celia Wall, buyer for Bullock-Wiltshire, Miss Cluxton is registered at the Empress Hotel. They motored north from Los Angeles, and will spend a few days in Victoria, visiting some of the shops. Both are interested in English weaves and woollens.

Miss Cluxton suggested that blondes should never wear pastels, but decided colors. She terms the suggestion that certain colors do not suit certain women as mistaken, commenting that each color had some sixteen shades, and in that range there is a shade for everyone.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

THE PATIENT, NOT THE ULCER, MUST BE TREATED IN PEPTIC ULCER

There was a time when a patient with ulcer of the stomach or small intestine (peptic ulcer) who finally got tired of "the same old diet and alkali powders" and decided to undergo operation, expected to be thus "cured" of all ulcer symptoms. Today both patients and physicians know that it is not the ulcer that has to undergo treatment, but the patient himself. The fact is that the patient is just the right kind of an individual to grow or develop peptic ulcer, and unless he makes himself over changes his habits of tenseness, worry or anxiety, nervousness, rapid eating, tendency to argue or quarrel; he is going to continue to develop ulcers. As many of these ulcer patients just can't change their habits and disposition; they are given the kind of food the stomach, or small intestine can handle easiest, together with alkaline powders to overcome the high degree of acidity in the digestive juices of the stomach. Hence the "medical" treatment of peptic ulcer has been for years and still is "soft, bland diet and alkali powders."

Now just as an overweight individual will grasp for a "quick" method of reducing weight—a drug or gland-extract—so are many ulcer patients now taking injections of histidine, which, in addition to relieving the pain of ulcer, also allows them to eat almost anything they wish. And reports from physicians using these injections certainly prove that this method is much more pleasant than the "diet and alkali" treatment and much to be preferred to operation.

However, what about the results obtained from the histidine injections? The reports continue to show that while relief from pain and other symptoms are obtained by this method, nevertheless the ulcer often remains and would give trouble were the histidine injections discontinued. In speaking of the results obtained by the old method—bland foods and alkalies—Dr. D. J. Sandweiss, Detroit, in The Journal of the American Medical Association, says: "Approximately 90 per cent of the patients with ulcer attacks become free of symptoms after careful diet-alkali management." However, of 155 patients treated (medically and surgically) and observed longer than five years, only five (3 per cent) are still free of symptoms from five and one-half to seven years after their first and only ulcer attack. This speaks unfavorably for the lasting benefit to be obtained from any form of ulcer treatment. It appears that, at the present state of our knowledge, all we can hope to accomplish and should aim for are: (a) to relieve symptoms, (b) to delay relapses or return of ulcer symptoms, and (c) to prevent complications.

Cubs Rout Bees Twice to Widen Lead Over Giants

Chicago Gains Half a Game on New York as They Capture Twin Bill From Boston, 12-6 and 6-2—Giants Beat Pirates—Yankees Stage Rally Against Feller in Late Innings to Win

NATIONAL LEAGUE
CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (AP)—Breaking out of their batting slump with a barrage of thirty hits, totaling fifty-three bases, the Cubs routed Boston Bees, 12-6 and 6-2, in both ends of a double-header today and widened their lead over the Giants to a half game to five and one-half games.
Homer by Frank Demaree, Gabby Hartnett and Stan Hack paced an eighteen-hit rally against four Boston pitchers in the opener, after Roy Johnson and Hal Warfield, the first two batters of the game, had jarred the Cubs' Tex Carleton, usually a Boston jinx, from his moorings with consecutive homers on his first five pitches. In the second game, the Cubs pounded out twelve hits, ten of them off their former colleague, Guy Bush.
In the second game, Roy Parmelee went the route for the Cubs for the first time in more than six weeks, limiting the Bees to five hits.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—Every-time happened at Yankee Stadium today except Bob Feller and the Cleveland Indians did not beat the Yankees.
Lou Gehrig hit his twenty-sixth homer of the year with a man on third off Feller in the ninth inning to tie the score. And Joe DiMaggio dropped a double along the left field foul line off Johnny Hoving in the tenth to score the tying and winning runs that gave the Yanks a 7-6 victory, their sixth in a row.

Boston Trims Sox
BOSTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—With Mike Higgins contributing two homers and driving in four runs, the red-hot Red Sox continued their batting spree today by walloping Chicago White Sox, 7-3, in the series opener for their tenth straight victory, not including one tie game.

CANADIAN XI SCORES WELL

Runs Up Total of 288 Runs Against M.C.C. Team in First Innings

TORONTO, Aug. 6 (AP)—Cautious batting, enlivened in the late afternoon by some spirited hitting by the tail-enders, gave Hon. R. C. Matthews' Canadian eleven a first-innings total of 288 in its two-day match against the touring Marylebone Cricket Club today. The visitors lost one wicket for seven runs when bad light stopped play.

At one time before lunch Mr. Matthews' team, which included, in addition to Toronto men, star players from St. Catharines, Montreal and Vancouver, looked to be going down cheaply, but a fine partnership by L. C. Bell and E. F. Loney altered the complexion of the game.

Bell hit 93 runs. He was dismissed with a smart catch by H. J. Enthoven off J. M. Brocklebank.

DEFENSIVE TACTICS
Loney adopted defensive tactics, staying almost as long as the wickets as his colleague for 37 runs. Walter Scott, Vancouver, and Ted Carlton, Toronto, took more liberties. They added 55 for the eighth wicket. Scott made 36, Carlton getting a similar total.

The lights were beginning to fade when the tired English players went in to bat. E. A. Jemmett, Montreal fast bowler, with his fifth ball sent back N. G. Wykes, leading M.C.C. batsman, who snicked the ball to Phil Seagram.

H. J. Enthoven joined C. H. Taylor and carried the score to seven. The batsmen then appealed against the light and play ended for the day.

Captures B.C. Net Championship

PAT CANNING

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD tennis star from Alameda, Calif., who yesterday captured the British Columbia junior girls' singles title at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club courts. One of the most promising of the younger "racquet welders," Miss Canning is enjoying a good season of tournament play and on her first swing around the Pacific Coast circuit has won five titles and shared in many others. Her championships include the Western Canadian, Pacific Northwest, Washington State, and British Columbia junior girls and Oregon State Women's. She also holds the distinction of being the youngest girl to ever win the Washington State junior girls' title, being only thirteen years old when she lifted the coveted trophy.

Bennett played a smart game

Smooth-stroking Dick Bennett, collegian racket-welder from Berkeley, advanced to the final of the men's singles by reason of his triumph over Seattle's slimy-built Mel Dranga, in a four-set match. After gaining 6-3, 6-1 victories in the first two sets, Bennett dropped the third set, 7-9. In this set Dranga had match point at 6-5 and forty love on his own service, but the Californian rallied and took the game.

CALIFORNIANS WILL BATTLE IT OUT FOR PROVINCIAL TITLES

B.C. Net Champions Will Be Crowned at Victoria Lawn Tennis Club Courts—Western Canada Titleholders Gain Finals in All Events—Play Starts at 11 o'clock—Singles Final at 1

Western Canada's tennis champions making their bids for British Columbia crowns, will be seen in action today at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club courts, when the finals in the forty-sixth annual provincial title meet will be played.

It will be an all-Californian affair, with the women and men stars who stroked their way to the Western Canada championships at Vancouver, last week, opposing their fellow countrywomen and countrymen in what should be a day of fine tennis.

Virginia Wolfenden, attractive young Bay City miss, and the only defending titleholder on hand, gained the select bracket yesterday, when she defeated Dr. Esther Barstow, Los Angeles veteran and former Canadian champion, with the easy scores of 6-0, 6-1. In the top bracket semi-final in the lower hall, Mrs. Ruby Bishop Bixler, Los Angeles, former United States national girls' champion, eliminated diminutive Cecile Miner, Long Beach netter, in a thirty-eight-game three set battle. The scores were 8-6, 6-8, 6-4.

If August 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m., and from 8:15 to 10:15 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a.m., from 6:15 to 8:15 p.m. and from 10:15 p.m. until midnight.

One of the most annoying conditions of this date may be the inability of the average person to attend strictly to his own business. You may have to use forbearance in dealing with some of the know-it-alls who are apt to contact you. You will gain more by being diplomatic than brusque. This is a good day to remember you can always catch more flies with sugar than vinegar. In seeking pleasure on this date, be discriminating in your selection of the diversion you are going to use as a medium to secure it. Random selections or the use of haphazard judgment is likely to result in disappointment.

The prevailing inclination will be to overdo things, particularly activities involving a lot of physical exertion. Be careful—in this respect. Married and engaged couples and those whose destinies are being shaped by Cupid will find on this August 7 that gentleness and affection will reap a good reward, whereas ill-temper and indifference will be productive of a reaction that will be regrettable. If a woman and August 7 is your birthday, a magnetic personality might give you a far-reaching influence over many people. Being very sympathetic, you perhaps will be the recipient of many confidences. You probably realize the importance of keeping a secret. There is a possibility of your discovering some strictly legitimate way through which a fortune—easy to be made. Should you have rough going in starting something new, do not become discouraged, for it would seem you are preordained to be a great success in anything you seriously undertake. Some of the activities that are liable to enable you to acquire a worth while bank account are: professional dancing, acting, singing, playing a musical instrument, interior decorating, or business management. You ought to be very fortunate in your selection of a husband.

The child born on August 7 apparently is surrounded by the best of luck. In its late teens a big opportunity may come knocking at its door. Wise parents will see that it is grasped, for this might mean the starting of a remarkable career. If a man and August 7 is your natal day and if you do not go around with a chip on your shoulder, you will win many loyal friends, and possibly through them make big money. As a chemist, naturalist, author, broker, real estate agent, actor, physician, clergyman or sales promoter, you might have a chance of seeing your ambitions gratified.
